Somatic Concentric Sex Therapy provides an easeful structure to navigate often challenging sexual terrain. SCST cultivates mindful eroticism, by weaving together somatic psychotherapy, dance/movement therapy, and sex therapy approaches. The goal is to learn this model from the inside out through experientials that prepare you to guide your clients through a somatic-based experience that will help them strengthen their connection with pleasure and ally with their sexuality. Bring your excitement, your curiosity, and your wisdom as we learn together how to rewrite sex-negative, disembodied sex/uality.

Learning Objectives

- Understand and articulate a somatic and dance movement therapy approach to sex therapy
- Support your clients to develop a practice of secure attachment with their body
- Learn the Erotic Bodyfulness practice
- Understand arousal anatomy as a part of total body connectivity
- Learn a model of Whole-Person Sexual Response
- Apply this inclusive somatic model to a diversity of client experiences & presentations
- Navigate ethical dilemmas that arise in therapy
- Support your clients to craft their own supportive community & therapeutic team
- Address common presenting sexual problems such as desire difference, arousal non-concordance, anorgasmia, or arousal anatomy difficulties.
- Assess a client's sexual problems using an integrated clinical somatic tool that incorporates body movement observation and assessment which also integrates the impact of their sociocultural location.
